MICHAEL TURNBULL

Submitted by Marjene Turnbull

Michael Turnbull, welder-artist, was asked to restore a hundred year old processional cross for Pope Francis' visit to Alberta. The cross was used by Archbishop O'Leary in 1920 in Edmonton. After a visit by Pope John Paul II in 1984, the cross broke into several pieces when it fell down a set of stone stairs. It was badly repaired, making it harder for Michael to fix properly. He spent over 66 hours repairing and restoring the cross. Michael is the son of Brian and Marjene Turnbull and lives with his wife Lindsey and daughter Beatrix near Onoway.

PICKING A LEADER

Submitted by MLA Shane Geston

I'm a bit of an enigma apparently when it comes to politics. This is in reference to my reasons for running in the first place, my previous background, and how I currently conduct business as an MLA. Many folks in the political arena have a tough time nailing me down, which makes some nervous, and others just plain confused. I never ran for the fame, the money, the stature; I didn't have a dream to become a politician, never had any real political ties or knew anyone involved in politics. I follow the guidelines of caucus, I'm a team player, but never at the expense of my own ethics, morals, principals, nor against the best interest of the folks I represent. I do my best to represent all the folks in my constituency, including the ones that didn't vote, or voted against me.

So when I recently gave my endorsement of a leadership candidate in the UCP race, a few folks started scratching their heads. A large number of others are asking my opinions of the other candidates, and again are confused when I'm advising that there are a lot of good ones to choose from - soft support as it were. When asked about one in particular from up north who was another Ottawa politician I prefer not to comment at all, "If you can't say anything nice, don't say anything at all" as my grandma used to tell her grandkids. I wish I heeded her advice on more than one occasion and am doing my best in this circumstance. Again, as there have been a large number of inquiries, I thought I'd share my thought process, as well as the 6 leadership attributes that I believe would be in the best interest of not only our area, but across the province.

1. Trust: It should be no surprise that this one is at the top of the list for me, as it is with many out here in God's Country. The Navy Seals put "Trust" as one of the absolute top items when it comes to their candidate selection to be part of that elite team. The organization can make up with training of other key items, to cover lack of experience or competencies, but you simply cannot sacrifice trustworthiness. Your team must be able to trust you in all things, and you must be able to trust them, to be able to depend on them, to predict what they will do, that they will not let you down when things get rough.

2. Integrity: Doing the right thing, because it's the right thing to do is way easier when things are going well. Not being influenced by outside pressures, media, special interest groups, and lobby groups really tests a person. Especially when all seems to be going to hell in a hand basket. Doing the right thing even though it is sometimes the painful thing, and knowing you will take a beating for it...well that takes someone who not only has leadership abilities, but who also has a full helping of integrity.

3. Respect: It is often said that respect is earned not demanded, and when given it is more...

I decided to put on the movie I had brought from home. It was pretty funny and had Jim Carrey in it. Everyone really liked it. People started talking to me and thanking me for the movie. No one cared who I was until I put on The Mask.

...likely to be reciprocated. I find that when someone is trustworthy, it is way easier to give and receive respect. Even the most ardent opponent can still respect the person that they are competing with; listening to other viewpoints and taking the time for thoughtful consideration. Being respectful is not a sign of weakness, it's a sign of maturity and competency.

4. Confidence: A good leader should be confident, not only in themselves, but in other and in the vision or direction they are taking the team. If the leader is confident in their abilities, they will teach others, they will build a team, they will be open to new ideas, and they will empower team members to achieve the goal and objectives.

5. Professionalism: In political leadership, from what I've seen over the years, far too many everyday principles have been compromised in the name of politics itself; political theatre and the media have taken away a lot of government professionalism. Carrying out business, communications, and managing the team in a professional manner is no easy task day in and day out. However, when it is done in this manner consistently, the best outcomes are achieved. People can respect a professional leader.

6. Competency: It's been said that we can all only rise to the level of our own incompetency. When it comes to elected leaders, well, I'd suggest that there are definite exceptions to the rule, and we all pay dearly for that. Sometimes for generations. I only need to point out a particular black face painting drama teacher, with little to no real-life experience that has risen into the highest seat of power at the federal level of government. Real world experience and competency counts when it comes to leadership. Having someone tell you what you want to hear rather than what you need to know does not contribute to competency. Having someone who is "Battle Tested" as it were gives more credence than those who may have been armchair quarterbacks, or who cast stones from the sidelines. After all, driving the car is far more difficult than being the back seat driver with no real driving experience.

It's with these basic principles in mind, and many more nuances than a simple article would allow, that I have chosen to endorse Travis Toews as the person who I think would make a great choice not only to lead the party that I'm part of, but to lead our province as the Premier. He's the real deal: he is just as comfortable in boots and blue jeans on a horse working cattle, as he is in the boardroom with a shirt and tie crunching the numbers.

I've seen him have the hard conversations, he's changed tactics when needed, and...

...explained it well when it wasn't the best course of action. He has also taken responsibility if things didn't work out, but for him, and thankfully for us, this has been a rare occasion.

His door has always been open, and he has never delayed on an item of importance. He has held his ground on more than one occasion when it would have been easier for him to relent. I trust and respect him not just for what he says but for what he has done, and consistently over the last three years, he has delivered in an extremely challenging environment without any major blowouts. He is a team player and believes in being less so that others can be more. He believes in empowering his team, expects a high level of performance, and for goals and objectives to be met. I've seen this demonstrated many times.

Ultimately a leadership race is an opportunity for the members to decide who best represents them. As a member I only have one vote as well. As an MLA of the government caucus, I'll need to be able to follow the leader that is chosen and continue to represent my constituency with professionalism and integrity. There is always a matter of compromise required in any organization, as well as a change of direction when "new management" takes control. I believe that the least amount of churn and disruption to a good organization is optimal, and in the case of a merged organization, the best leaders come from within, not from outside or from the old legacy management teams.

To pick the new leader of the UCP, you need to be an active member before Aug 12. The big vote is on October 2, and party members will be picking the next premier of our province. Get to know the candidates, optimally by hearing them in person at an all candidates forum, or at one of their personal engagements, it's the best way to know who you are voting for, or voting against.

FAMILIES ACROSS CANADA WILL SEE INCREASE IN CANADA CHILD BENEFIT

Submitted by Government of Canada

The Government of Canada remains committed to supporting families and children as we weather the lasting impacts of the Covid-19 pandemic.

Today, on its 6th anniversary, the Minister of Families, Children and Social Development, Karina Gould, highlighted that the maximum annual Canada Child Benefit will increase to help families cope with the rising cost of living. For the 2022-23 benefit year, families most in need can receive up to $6,997 per child under the age of six and $5,903 per child aged six through 17.

The Canada Child Benefit was introduced in 2016 and is a key component of the Government of Canada's Affordability Plan. Since its inception, the benefit has played a key role in reducing the number of children living in poverty and continues to be central to the Government of Canada's efforts to reduce poverty by 50% by 2030, relative to 2015 levels.

The Canada Child Benefit has been indexed since 2018. The amount Canadians receive is based on the adjusted family net income reported on their tax return from the previous year.

Since 2015, the Government of Canada has delivered real improvements to make life more affordable coast to coast to coast, including making a historic investment of up to $27 billion over five years to build a Canada-wide early learning and child care system in collaboration with provincial, territorial and Indigenous partners. This investment allows governments to work together toward achieving an average parent fee of $10-a-day by March 2026 for licensed child care spaces, starting with a 50% fee reduction on average for licensed early learning and child care spaces by the end of 2022.

Quotes

"Canadian families are worried about the rising costs associated with raising kids, but they are not in this alone. Through our new Affordability Plan, the continued indexation of the Canada Child Benefit, and our Canada-wide early learning and child care system, we will continue to prioritize the needs of children and families, and help put money back in the pockets of Canadians when they need it the most." The Minister of Families, Children and Social Development, Karina Gould

BLUE-GREEN ALGAE (CYANOBACTERIA) BLOOM ADVISORY ISSUED FOR LAC STE. ANNE

Submitted by Alberta Health Service

A blue-green algae (cyanobacteria) bloom has been identified in Lac Ste. Anne, located in Lac Ste. Anne County within the North Zone of Alberta Health Services. Residents living near the shores of this lake, as well as visitors to this lake, are advised to take the following precautions:

- Avoid all contact with blue-green algae (cyanobacteria) blooms. If contact occurs, wash with tap water as soon as possible.
- Do not swim or wade (or allow your pets to swim or wade) in any areas where blue-green algae (cyanobacteria) is visible.
- Do not feed whole fish or fish trimmings from this lake to your pets.
- Consider limiting human consumption of whole fish and fish trimmings from this lake, as it is known that fish may store toxins in their liver. (People can safely consume fish filets from this lake).

As always, visitors and residents are reminded to never drink or cook with untreated water directly from any recreational body of water, including Lac Ste. Anne, at any time. Boiling of this water will not remove the toxins produced by blue-green algae. An alternate source of drinking water should also be provided for pets and livestock while this advisory is active.

We acknowledge that this lake is of high significance to many people, and we anticipate that it will be visited by large numbers of people next week as part of the Pappal visit.

We are working closely with organizers of the visit to ensure that people can reduce their risk if they choose to visit the lake.

Blue-green algae is naturally occurring and often becomes visible when weather conditions are calm. Appearing like scum, grass clippings, fuzz or globs on the surface of water, blue-green algae can be blue-green, greenish-brown, brown, and/or pinkish-red, and often smells musty or grassy.

People who come in contact with visible blue-green algae or who ingest water containing blue-green algae may experience skin irritation, rash, sore throat, sore red eyes, swollen lips, fever, nausea and vomiting and/or diarrhea. Symptoms usually appear within one to three hours and resolve in one to two days. Symptoms in children are often more pronounced; however, all humans are at risk of these symptoms.

Weather and wind conditions can cause algae blooms to move from one location in the lake to another. Due to this, the advisory will remain in effect for Lac Ste. Anne until further notice.

Please note that areas of Lac Ste. Anne in which the blue-green algae bloom is NOT visible can still be used for recreational purposes, even while this blue-green algae Health Advisory is in place.

SUDOKU of the week

Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!
