JOKE of the week

Two husbands were discussing their married lives. Although happily married, they admitted that there were arguments sometimes. The Chad said, "I've made one great discovery. I know how to always have the last word." "Wow!' said Sherman, "how did you manage that?" "It's easy," replied Chad. "My last word is always 'Yes, Dear.'"

New Official Alberta Licence Plates Hit The Road

licence plate embraces the theme "Strong and Free," reflecting Alberta's bold identity, economic strength and deep-rooted provincial pride. The theme also pays tribute to Alberta's Latin motto and serves as a nod to Canada's national anthem.

Alberta's new official licence plate, featuring Moraine Lake, is available at registry agents starting November 9.

"The wait is over, and Alberta's new licence plate is officially hitting the road. Albertans chose the iconic Moraine Lake to showcase our Strong and Free spirit. It's a plate Albertans can proudly show off, whether driving to work, the lake or across the country."

Dale Nally, Minister of Service Alberta and Red Tape Reduction

If an Albertan wants to replace their current plate for the new licence plate once it is released, they can voluntarily pay a $20 government fee and a $15 registry agent service charge. Alternatively, Albertans can obtain a new plate on their vehicle registration renewal date for a $15 registry agent service charge and applicable renewal fees. Motorists may also continue using the previous licence plate once the new licence plate is brought onboard, provided it is still in good condition.

ALL EYES ON ALBERTA

Submitted by Government of Alberta

Alberta is setting a new standard in eye care as the first in Canada to expand optometric services and advance patient care.

Starting Nov. 1, 2026, Alberta will become the first province in Canada to allow qualified optometrists with additional training to perform certain minor surgical and laser procedures in their offices. The expanded services will include removal of benign skin lesions, treatments of styes and certain laser procedures.

The regulatory changes expand the procedures that specifically trained optometrists can provide directly in community clinics. This means eligible patients will be able to receive more advanced eye care from an optometrist without being referred elsewhere for those services

"Albertans deserve timely access to the care they need. Getting the right care shouldn't mean travelling hours or waiting longer than necessary for a procedure a qualified health professional can safely provide closer to home. We're giving Albertans more choices, reducing unnecessary barriers and making health care work better for patients, while keeping safety our highest priority."

Justin Wright, Minister of Primary and Preventative Health Services

By making more eye health services available through optometrists, more Albertans will have opportunities to get the care they need sooner and closer to home. This is particularly important for rural and remote communities, where accessing care can mean lengthy travel and wait times. For patients, the changes could mean fewer referrals, fewer appointments, less travel and earlier access to treatment.

Patient safety remains the highest priority. Optometrists must complete additional training before they can provide these advanced health services and will need to comply with new standards of practice and oversight by the Alberta College of Optometrists.

"As a clinician and educator with firsthand experience performing these procedures, I know the difference they can make for patients. Alberta's doctors of optometry have the training and expertise to deliver this care safely. This is a milestone for our profession and for Albertans seeking timely eye care."

Dr. Sophia Leung, president, Alberta Association of Optometrists

Expanding the scope of qualified optometrists will also strengthen health system capacity by allowing ophthalmologists to focus on patients with more complex eye health concerns. This is about ensuring patients receive appropriate care from the right professional, while allowing specialists to devote more of their time to complex cases.

"This announcement builds on years of collaboration between the college and government to modernize how eye care is delivered and to improve access for patients. Our high standards of oversight will continue as optometrists deliver care closer to home, which will increase system capacity, reduce delays and improve patient outcomes."

Dr. Michelle Duke, president, Alberta College of Optometrists

Together, these changes will make better use of eye care professionals' expertise, improve access to safe and timely services, and help more Albertans receive the right care in their own communities. Better access to health care does not always require more buildings or more bureaucracy. It can start by allowing qualified professionals to do more for the patients they already serve.

SEBA SENIORS ACTIVITY CENTRE AND THRIFT SHOP CELEBRATES 50 YEARS OF COMMUNITY SPIRIT

Submitted by Seba Beach Seniors

Fifty years of hard work, volunteerism and community spirit were celebrated this summer as the Seba Seniors Activity Centre and Thrift Shop marked a remarkable milestone.

Members and friends gathered for a special luncheon on July 10, celebrating the people who have helped make Seba Seniors an important part of the local community for five decades. The festivities continued on July 11 with a lively '70s-themed dance, bringing members together for an evening of music, memories and fun.

For 50 years, Seba Seniors has been much more than a place to gather. Through the dedication of countless volunteers and the generosity of its members and supporters, the centre and thrift shop have provided friendship, activities, support and a strong sense of community for generations and will do so for many more years to come.

IT'S ALBERTA TIME

Submitted by Government of Alberta

Albertans will no longer have to change their clocks as the province will be on permanent daylight time, known as Alberta Time, starting Nov. 1.

Starting this weekend, Albertans will no longer need to change their clocks twice a year as the province moves to permanent daylight time, known as Alberta Time (ABT). That means no more turning the clocks back in November or moving them forward in March. Albertans will now have one consistent time throughout the year.

"Albertans are tired of changing their clocks twice a year. Permanent daylight time means more evening sunshine to enjoy with family and friends, while keeping us aligned with our western neighbours and making everyday life a little simpler."

Dale Nally, Minister of Service Alberta and Red Tape Reduction

Permanent daylight time also avoids extremely early summer sunrises, which could occur as early as 4 a.m. in some Alberta communities under permanent standard time.

Technology providers have been very aware of the transition to Alberta Time and Alberta's government has worked very closely with them for months. While most smartphones, computers, tablets and other connected devices are expected to update automatically, provided they have current software and automatic time-zone settings enabled, there may be some systems that do not update seamlessly. The province will continue to encourage technology providers to provide updates.

Albertans are encouraged to ensure their devices have the latest software updates installed and automatic time-zone settings enabled before Nov. 1. Some older or unsupported devices may need to be updated or adjusted manually.

BRINGING CERTAINTY TO EDUCATION PROPERTY TAXES

Submitted by Government of Alberta

Alberta is reducing, standardizing and freezing education property taxes, delivering tax relief for Albertans and providing greater certainty for municipalities.

Through Budget 2027, Alberta's government will introduce one fair and stable provincial education property tax (EPT) rate that will be locked in every three years, so every Albertan and municipality can better plan for the years ahead. The new standardized EPT rate will cut taxes paid by Albertan property owners, delivering estimated overall savings of $98.7 million in 2027-28.

Starting in 2027, municipalities will apply the new provincial education property tax rates to assessed property values, simplifying how the provincial portion of property taxes is calculated. To support and protect Albertans in communities where the new provincial rate may be higher than their current local rate, Alberta's government will be providing a one-time transition tax credit in 2027 to help families adjust and limit the impact on household finances.

"Albertans asked for a tax system they can count on, and Budget 2027 will deliver exactly that. We're reducing the education property tax rate, freezing the rate for three years, applying it fairly to residents and businesses in all municipalities, and giving greater certainty. By reducing and locking in provincial rates, we're making it easier for Alberta municipalities to plan and budget with confidence."

Danielle Smith, Premier

"We are giving Albertans and municipalities a clear rate they can plan around and helping put more money back in families' pockets. Locking in one rate for three years brings discipline and certainty to how this tax works, and it means stable, sustainable funding for classrooms across the province."

Jason Nixon, President of Treasury Board and Minister of Finance.

Municipalities will continue to collect the provincial EPT through their regular property tax bills to provide funding for Alberta's education system. More information on rates, detailed calculations and municipal guidance will be shared before municipalities adopt their 2027 tax bylaws.

"No matter where Albertans call home, they should be able to count on a fair and consistent approach to education property taxes. Applying the same provincial rates across municipalities will create a more consistent system and ensure Albertans are treated fairly, regardless of where they live."

Dan Williams, Minister of Municipal Affairs

"I welcome this change that simplifies the process for calculating the province's education property tax while also providing more transparency to Edmontonians."

Andrew Knack, mayor, City of Edmonton

"This is great news for Calgarians and all Albertans. Giving taxpayers certainty is critical, especially in a time of challenging inflation and rising costs. This means stability and predictability for Calgarians, and for City Hall. Knowing these numbers before we get into our budget debate provides clarity that will help us deliver for Calgary's priorities."

Jeromy Farkas, mayor, City of Calgary

Through Budget 2027, Alberta's government will continue to support families, build strong communities and work collaboratively with municipal partners to deliver results across the province.

SUDOKU of the week

Here's How It Works: Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
